

When I was a child!

When I was a child, my mother and my father were both sorry they could not get any education. My father Eugène-Léo with barely a grade three, manage to get to be municipal secretary, this feat he was very good at and extremely proud of !

My mother, with about the same level of education, for the purpose of understanding her daughter's boyfriends, took intensive English courses when she was past sixty-five years old!

My father in law Benoit, when he was a kid, spent hours crying in front of the windows because he could not go to school with the other kids....

My mother in law Yvonne took writing courses when she was past sixty-five!

What courage!

Hélène and I made extreme sacrifices to pay for the education of our children's, each and every one of whom has the diploma of their choice.
